The heart that truly, purely loves When of that love bereft; When of that roll Is like a marble monument By vivid lightnings cleft; Its beauties to restore; No human power can e'er again Unite its fragments more.

COMMODORE STEPHEN DECATUR.

A nobler or a braver man never trod the planks of a man-of-war's decks than Stephen Decatur; while his cool sagacity and clear-headedness were fully equal to his courage. In the destruction of the frigate Philadelphia, a Tripolitan prize, lying in the harbor of Tripoli, and his attack upon, and capture of, the Tripolitan gunboats, which were anchored under the very muzzles of the guns of the Turkish batteries; in his gallant capture of the Macedonian; in the brave challenge he sent to the commander of the British squadron, who had cooped him up in the River Thames, in Connecticut, to pit the two frigates United States and Macedonian with any two frigates in the English fleet, (which honor, however, was declined;) in his energetic negotiations with the Tripolitans, which resulted so gloriously to the government under whose orders he sailed, and whose flag he went to vindi cate ;-in all these leading acts of his gallant life, as well as in many of minor account, Decatur exhibited the greatest talents for a naval leader, and wreathed for his brows a chaplet of renown which the world shall honor, and his countrymen glory in, until "the sword shall be beaten into a ploughshare, and the spear into a pruning hook."

Would that we could drop here the pen of record, and draw the veil of oblivion over the tragic act which caused his sun to disappear in mid-heaven in darkness and smoke. Terrible as war is, had the hero fallen amid the roar of his own victorious cannon, mutilated, mangled, and deformed, his had been the death of fame and glory; but that he should have fallen by his own hand-for we hold every duel- find its way into every library. death a case of suicide—is cause for regret as deep as it is useless.

Early in the war of 1812, Decatur superseded Commodore Barron in command of the Chesapeake. From that moment an enmity was established between them, which time only served to accrebate, and side, and, in 1819, to a correspondence beters, and ended in a challenge. The correspondence, afterwards published, was justified by the positions the writers occupied in the world.

Both gentlemen professed to reprobate duelling, yet such was their mutual hatred, that neither would offer conciliation, although the friends of both did what was in their power to prevent the dreadful result. On a raw, chilly morning in March, 1820, these brave men, who had fought side by side for glory and their country, met in mortal combat on the field of Bladensburg, so famous for its unboly and on the Aceldamaic field, efforts were renewed to procure reconciliation, but nei-The latter was conveyed to Washington,

El-Khuds, the Holy.

Notwithstanding the many books written upon the Holy Land, the reading publie is always ready to give a welcome to another. The many objects of sacred wonder in the Cities of the Bible guarantees an entertaining record from the pen of the tourist, albeit the ground traversed may be somewhat backneved and even the ability of the writer rather indifferent. But the very best book upon the theme, as it is also the most beautifully published, is a new narrative from the pen of a Southern gentleman, William Mason Turner, M. D., of Virginia; just issued in a royal octavo volume by Messrs. James Challen & Son of Philadelphia, the same firm who two years ago brought out those two splendid works Barciay's "City of the Great King," and "Osborn's Palestine Past and Present." El-Khuds, the Holy, or Glimpses in the Orient, is a work essentially different from those two. It is the result of a journal kept from Naples as far east as Jericho, the daily record of events being continued through the Holy Land and Egypt, back to Paris-including the Island of Malta, the cities of the Italian coast. and Marseilles. Faithful descriptions are given of Meesina, Cairo, Valetta, Jaffa, Kirjath jearim, Jerusalem, Bethany, Bethlehem, Jericho, the Jordan, Dead Sea, Beirut, etc., and a truthfulness is given to all the pictures from the fact that all these descriptions were written amid the scenes they describe.

An interesting feature of the work is the discussions which the author gives relative to many disputed points, such as the identity of the Church of the Sepu'chre, actual site of Golgotha, place of the Ascension, etc. A full history of the ancient walls and ancient gates is given-the modern gates and walls being likewise fully described. There is also a well considered history of Jerusalem under the three ered history of Jerusalem under the three first class abolitionist. So is Dr. Cutter, controlling powers of Jew, Roman, and of "bleeding Kansas" notoriety. Let Mohammedan. When we say that with all these is inw ven a delightful and graphic narrative of personai adventures on the mountains, in the cities, and on the plains, we trust we have conveyed some idea of the importance and interest of this splendid work. No person of taste or culture should be without it, and it should

But enough. The facts speak without extracts. I hope my brother teachers will pass round the name of Cleveland and his publisher. To the latter we would say, that the confidence reposed by the South in Northern school-book publishers, has heretofore been liberal and unsuspicious, but that confidence has at length become alarmed, and its eyes will henceforth be close upon you, and upon any vehicles, in whatever disguise you may send them forth, for the circulation of social and political poison in our midst. No one will deny that a healthy, vigorous, and active physical system is an inestimable blessing. Bacon wisely places the good of the body, in health, strength, and beauty; for soundness of body is the first requisite to human happiness; the power of endurance is a necessary element of success in every pursuit of life; and a manly figure and a graceful deportment are valued and desired by all except the ignorant and debased. A famous Englishman, in accounting for the achievements of another still more famous, said of him, "I know he can toil terribly." A suggestive writer remarks that the first requisite to success in life is "to be a good while on the other hand, the American, animal." Under the keen competition of modern life, the application required at precisely the opposite phenomenon, of almost every one is such as few can bear without more or less injury; and being in the majority. many break down altogether under the severe pressure to which they are subject. Those persons who have never travelled, and who have never made the subject a study, are not fully aware of this physical degeneracy, because they have no standard of comparison. As a proof of its existence, however, it may be remarked that foreigners, on their arrival in America, are struck with the predominance of sallow, thin, unhealthful countenances, on his first visit to England, is surprised -the ruddy and healthful countenances

For the other half of a courting match there is nothing like an interesting widow. There is as much difference in courting a damsel and an attractive widow as there is in ciphering in addition and the double rule of three. Courting a girl is like eating fruit-all very nice as far as it extends; but doing the amiable to the blueeyed bereaved one in black crape comes under the head of preserves-rich pungent syrup. For delicate courting, we repeat, give us a " live widder."

AMONG THE BOOKS. BY J. STARR HOLLOWAY.

THE DEER SLAYER. Vol. XXV. of Darleg's Unstrated Cooper. New York: W. A. Foursend & Co., Publishers.

This is one of the grandest novels ever written. It is only when we approach the sea and forest stories of Cooper that we barn the wonderful strength and grace of the man. There is no mistake of purpose here, but all is direct, glowing, grand. Of the renowned Leather Stocking tales, The Pioneers was the first in the order of the author's creation, but ranks next to the last according to the order of events ; while the Deer Slaver, though the last mitten, is in reality the first of the series. Chronologically the five novels, of which the Leather Stocking tales is comprised, aw arranged thus :- The Deerslaver, The last of the Mohicans, The Pathfinder, The Pioncers, The Prairie; and new readers will the better appreciate their connection by making their acquaintance in the same succession.

It is through these novels that we trace the career of that wonderful creation of the novelist's pen, Natty Bumpo. No other character ever drawn by Cooper endears the author more to us than this sim ple-hearted, noble child of the forest, and we doubt not that the fame of Cooper depends as much upon this one character as upon most of his other creations combined. As to the typographical and mechanical execution of this volume, in common with the others of the series, it is all that could be desired. And the price is such that no one, however poor, need neglect or fail to add the volumes, month by month as they appear, to his literary treasures.

THE GREAT PREPARATION. By Rev. John Comming. New York : Rudd & Carleton, Publishers.

As is well known this much talked of work is a sort of sequel to the equally fa-Bous "Great Tribulation," from the same arhor. This handsome volume is calculated to do much good in the present excited state of the country. Among the discourses are the famous ones of Rev. Mr. Vandyke. and the Rabbi Raphall. Others are by Dr. Breckinridge, of Kentucky, Dr. Thornwell, of South Carolina, Dr. Palmer, of Louisiana, Dr. Dabney, of Virginia, Dr. Vinton, and others. Every reader will be glad to possess these masterly discourses in a substantial form, and the sale of the volume must be large.

WESTMINSTER REVIEW, January, 1861. LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW, January, 1861. New York: L Scott & Co., Publish-

These two grand periodicals, the first organ of the liberal party in England, and the other of the conservative, are both now issued for the January quarter from the never failing press of Messrs. Scott & Co., and in the well-known excellent style of their reprints. The Westminster leads of with an interesting article on Ancient Danish Ballads, which is followed by very readable papers on Alcohol: What becomes of it in the Living Body? Canadathe Neapolitan and Roman Questions, Cavour and Garibaldi, Dante and his Translators, and the usual complete resume of the publications of the quarter. There are also two articles which we do not like. One on American Slavery, which is written either in culpable ignorance or with malicious intent, and one on Bible Infallibility, which is positively blasphes

They are always, whether written upon American politics. or religion, or any of the numerous subjects discussed in its pages, are always fair, and well informed and prepared with the object of disseminating truth and not error. The present number contains eight papers, one of which is a noble testimonial to, and critical examination of, our countryman, Dr. Motley's new volumes on the United Netherlands. Other papers are on Italy, Canada, Iron Manufactures, the Dogs of History and Romance (a splendid article,) Welsh literature, etc. Gifford, Southey, Lockhart, and Croker, were among the great spirits who raised this pe riodical to its present high position, a position which it shows no sign of losing. But all these reprints of the Messrs Scott & Co. stand unrivalled in the world of letters, and are indispensable to the scholar and the professional man, while to the intelligent reader, male or female, in every station, they furnish a more correct and satisfactory record of the current literature and affairs of the day throughout the the publication in this country of the lat- world than can be obtained from any other ter work has called forth a uniform edition source. MEMORY. BY C.

O, memory! how devotedly mankind bow at thy shrine ! And we feel that it is a precious privilege, that we can, occasionally, retire from the bustling throng, from the buisy theatre of life, and muse upon the past; yes, often do our thoughts our upon the wings of imagination, far back into the mystic days of yore, and feast upon golden dreams of long ago.

The great, the gay, the rich, the poor, the monarch, and the subject, alike desert the haunts of men and dwell, for a time, dwells that whole family. upon memory's page. When the bright son of prosperity has shed his evening rays, and the delusive meteors of hope. of hope passed from view, and all our fair prospects, are scattered fragments, wrecked upon adversity's sea; still one star re mains-the star of memory-and presents to the mind pleasing images of the past. It carries us back to childhood's happy lays when we knew no care, no sorrow clouded our brow; when in innocent glee we sported along the meandering brook, or plucked the flowers in the alley, green; formed them into boquets or carelessly tossed them by. How fondly do we linger upon scenes which transpired during our school days; happy period of life!

whose only care is to avert the displeasure of his teacher, who is apt to frown if the task assigned is not well performed. And the man of years almost wishes himself a boy again; that he might, once more realize the joy of those pleasant hours. But one glance at the destiny of man tells him that this can not be, and points him to the future, dark-impenetrable darkness shrouds the mind, and clouds of sorrow seem to be gathering; but, here again the fond recollection of a Saviour who bled on Calvary, for fallen man, cheers his declining years, nor forsakes him till he sleeps with his fathers.

The sons of fortune, fame, and glory love to dwell upon the events of their youth, pictured with everlasting force upon memory's adamantine tablet. With what emotion does the wanderer think of his native land! whether upon stormy seas or distant shores; whether an emigrant or an exile, still the spot that gave him birth, space can blot them out.

A Whole Family in Heaven. BY GERTRUDE D. BENNET.

A whole family in Heaven! what a happy thought! Father, mother, sisters and brothers united never more to be separated. There, hand in band, they walk the shores of the eternal world. One by one they bade a lieu to their friends and families, who followed them with tearful eyes and breaking hearts to their last carthly resting-place, the grave. Aye, one by one they left this sorrowing world, to meet, never to part again. Happy, happy the thought. All tears are now dried from their eyes, and heavenly smiles beam upon each shining face. Joyful music fills their ears, as golden harps by their fingers are touched-and their eyes sparkle with a joy which is not of the ear.h. No tears can ever again dim their eyesno griet ever more fill their bearts, for, in the presence of the ever living God, now

THE DEAD.

Soundly sleep the dead. No earthly sound can awake them. Naught but the trumpet which is to proclaim that the day of Judgment is at hand. The grave is the only harbor for the sad and tempest-tost soul-a bed for the weary and wayworn earthly traveler, where he may lie down and rest undisturbed, for there alone the weary sleep in peace. In the grave the hands of the oppressed are burst asunder, and broken hearts are healed. There are neither master nor servant, for the small and the great are equal. The dead leave behind them their examples and the influence of their actions -we are surrounded by their works, we sit by the same fireside, cat at the same table, sleep in the same room, and walk in the same paths they have walked in, yet, how little we think of those departed ones, who slumber so soundly in the close confines of the tomb!

The Look.

"One of the Nevitts, Earl of Warwick, had so terrible a look when moved a little that it was said of him, every wrinkle in his forehead was a sepulchre to bury a prince in; he was of kin to that nation, Deut, 28,50 that had fierce countenances; and Antiochea, a wicked King, is described in Dan. 8,23, to be of a fierce countenance, his aspect was terrible; and some have been blasted by the frowns of mortals When some men frown, look soure and sparkle with their eyes, they prove bagilisks and kill those they lock upon.'

Surely the end of far from home, in regions where winter's that heavenly motion is for the benefit of icy hand is unknown, and be surrounded the earth; and the end of all these earthly turmoils is our repose in heaven. Those ever ripe; still the frozen seas and the who imagine the carth to turu about, and snow-covered shores of Greenland, his the heavens to stand still, have yet supposed that we may stand or set still that whirling globe of earth ; how much more may we be persuaded of our perfect rest above those moving spheres. The Tongue.

Death and life are in the power of the tongue, it comforts, it destroys; take the tongue of an evil man that slanders and back-bites, it's a great murderer.

We read of some double tongues, 1st Timothy, 8-8v., but such are treble tongues, and kill three at once, as Berpard saith; himself that speaks, the person he speaks to; and him he speaks of; and the worst is, he murders his own soul; therefore Chrysostome observes well, and suith: "The tongue is almost the very gate of death, it is the death and ruin of most men in the world."

It is a vain hope to please all alike .-Let a man stand with his face in what direction be will, he must necessarily turn his back upon half .he world.

The Arkansus Election.

The latest advices received at Washingcon from Little Rock, Arkansas, show the Convention has been ordered by a small vote of the people. The Convention consists of about seventy-five members, of which twenty-eight for immediate and unconditional secession have been elected, twenty for the preservation of the Union without condition, and twenty-seven for Arkansas adhering to the Union if the Prace Convention shall agree upon a compromise satisfactory to the border States. We consider that they are more profitable than cotton, where the land is suitable for their culture .-They have been a source of great wealth to this section of the country. The fol. The ground is well broken and then checked off two and a half feet each way. their dresses to trail in the mud. This is Two shelled peas in the bill. After they are up, they are cultivated by running a sweep sixteen or eighteen inches in width both ways, which the ground is stirred well around the plant, and all the grass taken out. Very little dirt is put around best. This process of working must be continued every two weeks, until they meet and cover the ground, when grass will cease to grow, which is about three months from the time of planting.

They require very neat culture. The pea grows entirely in the ground. They blossom as the field pea, but they put out a stem from the bloom which penetrates the ground about three inches, when the pea is formed on the end of it. They are dug with a plow made for that purpose, passing under the bunch, when they are picked off at leisure. It is a difficult thing for an inexperienced person to know when they are ripe enough to dig; but when nearly all the leaves are shed, and the peas, on opening, nearly all present a reddish appearance, they will do for digging. Good land will produce from fifty to seventy-five bushels to the acre.

Mulching Wheat with Buckwheat.

Dr. C. Harlan of Wilmington, Del. advocates sowing buckwheat with wheat in the fall. He says the buckwheat will often grow two feet high before the frost kills it. It will prevent the winds from sweeping the earth away from the tender roots, and will assist in preventing the frost from throwing out the crop; and when spring returns, it will rot down and assist to nourish the young plant when it most needs it. Something in this idea.

OUR HOMES.

It is an unpleasant sight to see the ladies in the streets, on rainy days, allow unpardonable. There is no impropriety in raising the skirts high enough to keep them out of the dirt; there is a very unlady-like prudery in refusing to raise them elightly when cleanliness requires it. It is not necessary, however, for any lady to the place, as nearly level culture is the hold her dress with her hands to keep it spice, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, and out of the mud. The English women, says a European writer, understand these things better than we do, go out walking in rain and mud, wearing long dresses, and, without taking their bands from their muffs, come home with the clothing as cleanly as when they started out. How do they do it? They wear skirts that do not reach lower than the ankle; short enough, in fact, to keep clear of the mud without any lifting. The dress is worn long, but is looped up when the lady is in the street. The loops are a late invention, and are now the fashion in Great Britain. A woman who should go out in muddy weathar without them would be considered a prude. They are made thus : There is a belt of black ribbon, three-quarters of an inch wide, and long enough to go round the lady's waist, with a book at one cnd and an eye at the other, as a fastening; a erate oven for one bour. piece of the same kind of ribbon three yards long, is attached to the end and the middle of the belt. The belt is now put on with the book and eye in front; and as the water will take up; wash the warts press upon every reader of the Times, let banging down on each side is a loop of with this for a minute or two, and let them us take two fields, side by side—one of black ribbon, three-quarters of a yard long. 20 acres, and one of 10 acres, both sown When the lady is about to go out, she puts a bottle and repeat the washing often, and on her belt, and puts a part of the lower portion of her dress through each loop, which is thus raised into four festoons, all of it is above the lower edge of the petti-30 of it is above the lower conditions 10 coat. She then walks out with her hands free, her dress clean, and her conscience both in speaking and writing, and to at ease; and if she wishes to enter a house, she can take her dress out of the loops in clean but graceful, and it shows a white petticoat, one of the most beautiful arti- en age of youth, the proper season for the cles of ladies' apparel, to much advantage. $ 15 In England, however, a white petticoat is not considered indispensable; on the contrary, scarlet woolen petticoats are much worn by most fashionable people, as also are red woolen stockings. Correct Speaking.

We advise all young people to acquire in early life the habit of good language, abandon, as early as possible, any use of slang words and phrases. The longer an instant. The looped dress not only they live, the more difficult the acquisition of such language will be; and if the goldacquisition of language, be passed in its abuse, the unfortunate victim of neglected education is very probably doomed to talk slang for life. Money is not necessary to procure this education. Every man has it in his power. He has merely to use white cotton stockings are the exception, the language which he reads, instead of slang which he hears, to form his taste scarlet, or scarlet with black stripes, or country to treasure up choice phrases in his memory, and to habituate himself to By raising the yield from 12 to 17 bush the shoes are not of thin cloth, with paper their use-avoiding, at the same time, els per acre, we get $5 less profit from soles, but Balmoral boots, with heavy up that pedantic precision which shows rather 10 acres than from 20. One night, after a bard day's play, little Ancie said she was too tired to say her payen before going to bed.

"Will God take care of you if you do not pry to him !" I asked

"Certainly he will-the tress don't pray to him," she replied. Then added, "But, then, they are duff and dem, [deaf and dumb:] /can speak, and so I ought to pray, oughtn't I ?"

Flora B. is a tolerably well-grown "little one," but very full of her old speeches .-Her father had been absent from home many weeks, and, one day, seeing her mother removing some of his clothing from one closet to another, she exclaimed with all earnestness :

'O dear ! wouldn't you be glad, now, to see these old pantaloons walking about the house ?"

"Why, child, what do you mean?" her mother asked, startled at such a novel sug-

"0! of course I should want father in

What a thoughtful, considerate, and traly Christian spirit! What a blessing to himself, and what a joy to his parents! Who cannot see, in the conscientiousness and tenderness here manifested, the sure restraints-unwilling to yield to their counsels, reluctant to obey their commands and really disobedient in spirit, even when obeying in the outward act! And how often have you "sinned in not being careful to please your parents?" in not being considerate, respectful, affectionate, thoughtful to anticipate their wishes, and prompt to do in all things what they desire and enjoin? Alas for those who forget their duties to their parents!

A NEW BOOK. DRIFTWOOD ON THE SEA OF LIFE, A collection of Tales, Sketches and Poems. By Willie Ware. Published by James Challen & Son, Philadelphia; Sheldon & Co., New York; Brown & Taggard, Boston.

A Son, Philadelphia; Sheldon & Co., New York; Brown & Taggard, Boston.

From the Independent Press.

To all who have read his elegant productions of prose and poetry, it is enough to warrant its success to know that it comes from the pen of Willie Ware.

From the New Fork Dispatch.

DRITTWOOD ON THE SEA OF LITE.—under the above title, one of our most favored contributors is about to publish a volume that cannot fail to be agreeable, to not only our readers, who are familiar with the semi-piquant, semi-philosophical style of working out his ideas, but the reading public at large. Willie Ware is a young but powerful and dashing writer—one who is destined to make his mark on the literature of the age, and should, therefore, in his early efforts, (which, by the way, are far from being crude, in either thought or word, be encouraged.

From the Voltey Sur.

GET IT.—Willie Ware announces in our advertising columns that his new book will shortly appear. We hope many of our readers will secure this work, as it will be a valuable addition to every library. Send your name to the publisher at once, and when the book is published send the money and get it.

From the Henderson (Ky) Moil.

From the Henderson (Ky) Mail. From the REDRIESSON (Key) Med.

We can assure our readers that the forthcoming volume will be one of no ordinary degree of merit—that it will be "a feat of good things" for the intellectual appetite. Its very name is highly poetical.

A PAPER FOR THE CRISIS! THE TIMES,
THE FAMILY NEWSPAPER FOR N. CAROLINA

To commence with the first number for some publishers have accured a new and beautiful story, entitled, M A U D, of such finished character and thrilling interest, that the reader may expect to find himself often laughing in tears. The Domestic and Agricultural departments of The Times will receive during the coming year more attention than heretofore. The Domestic economy, consfort and happiness, and the independent and homorable pursuit of Agriculture, form the great wealth and peculiar characteristic of our free-country, and specially so in North Carolina. The Times will, therefore, be a welcome visitor to every country home, and to every industrious farmer.—
The Times is presented to the people of North Carolina as a home paper, devoted to the development of home indused in this national crisis to patronize home papers; to build up home interests instead of scattering their substance and their energies among strangers. Give Time Times a trial, and then let it stand on its own merits.

It was the evening before I left York, I dropped into the News office to say good-by to Mr. Haller and my other friends, when Harry Willard urged me very warmly to call, with him, on A said, "I'll go." I had not seen either -Mand or Ada since I was at Willow Valley; and I had a great desire to meet them once again before any change sh take place in their life. On our arrival we found quite a company in the parle Ada was delighted to meet me and scolded me very much for not making her a visit during the sum. mer. For an hour I enjoyed her society. Feeling desirous to make a few calls before retiring, I begged to be excused, and after bidding Ada a warm good-by, leaving my compliments for Maud, I left the happy company. As I stepped into the eral affairs. hall, a servant addressed me,

" Is this Mr. Wayland?"

" It is !"
